The Pennsylvania Neurological Society grew out of an increasing recognition that decisions affecting patient care and physicians within the scope of neurology in Pennsylvania occur with little involvement by neurologists. This can only change when physicians work together under a united front to make a difference.

As a result of these needs, and the potential to improve neurology education, collegiality and networking amongst neurologists across the state, the Pennsylvania Neurological Society was born. Its goals include:

- 1) Improve the practice of Neurology and Child Neurology within the state of Pennsylvania.
- 2) Conduct, support and sponsor educational endeavors for its members.
- 3) Represent Pennsylvania neurologists to the public, government, media, and other organizations that involve the practice of neurology.
- 4) Advocate on behalf of patients with neurological disease and enhance public awareness and understanding of neurological disorders.
- 5) Encourage a sense of community and provide networking opportunities between Pennsylvania's adult and child neurologists.
